

Creating Confident Children at the Heart of a Curriculum for Excellence

Moyra Boland, Education Consultant

AGES
3-6

Wednesday 10th March 2010

9.30am – 3.30pm

Early years practitioners are always anxious that they help their children to have a positive self-esteem because this gives their children the confidence and the very best approach to all the learning and living activities that lie ahead.

Aims

- To explore a Curriculum for Excellence in relation to creating confident children and links to planning experiences for children;
- To consider ways to inspire children to feel confident and comfortable to meet everyday challenges offered by a Curriculum for Excellence.

Even the youngest child wants to be social; they look for company but have no real understanding of how to mix. Between the ages of 1 and 6 years, children show gradual development from simple to more complicated forms of social play.

Confident children love learning. The Curriculum for Excellence promotes children's confidence being at the centre, giving young children the security and knowledge that they are great learners who can tackle any challenge in the early years setting.

This training day will involve interactive practical sessions, role play, drama and discussion workshops. Delegates will discover practical ways in which they can boost young children's confidence and self esteem through active play contexts.

