

Curriculum for Excellence - Creating Contexts for Learning

AGES
3-6

Moyra Boland, Education Consultant

Wednesday 5th May 2010

9.30am – 3.30pm

Play is the best way for a young child to learn. In the early years of a child's life the way she learns to play, the resources she plays with and the kind of engagement she 'steps' into will contribute enormously to her emotional and cognitive development.

Although the focus of the day will be on creativity and the imagination, delegates will explore the possibilities of enhancing their existing space and resources to ensure their core curriculum is more exciting and engaging.

Aims

- To highlight the use of drama and role play to engage young children in all aspects of their learning;
- To explore a range of contexts which will excite and enable every young child to become involved in their environment.

